IT was Question Time with a twist when youngsters from the borough got a chance to quiz their Mayor at an event to mark Local Democracy Week.

Representatives from Hackney Youth Parliament and students from The Petchey Academy grilled Mayor Philip Glanville on topics ranging from lowering the voting age to funding for schools and support for young people with disabilities. For more pics turn to page 7.

FOOTING THE BILL

RESIDENTS are being urged to ask the Government to foot the bill for policing as part of a campaign to raise awareness of the impact cuts to officer numbers are having on the borough.

Hackney has lost one in four police officers since 2010 – and after a 15-year downward trend – crime is now on the rise.

The Council campaign, called 'Foot The Bill', calls on the Government to abandon further planned cuts to the Metropolitan Police budget and increase its funding. It also asks residents and businesses to write to the Home Secretary to tell her about their own concerns and experiences of increasing crime and antisocial behaviour to demonstrate the real impact of cuts.

The Metropolitan Police is funded predominantly by a Government grant. The service has been forced to make £600million in savings since 2010, with a further £400million due by 2020/21, as a result of Government cuts.

Officer numbers have declined across London, and Hackney has seen a cut from 770 officers in 2010, to 584 now. The loss of officers in Hackney comes against a backdrop of an increasing population – up by a third in 15 years – and an ever-growing influx of people each night to popular night-time destinations such as Shoreditch and Dalston.

Each officer in the borough is now responsible for 469 people, up from 320 in 2010.

Between 2002/03 and 2014/15, crime fell by 34.7 per cent in Hackney, equating to 13,000 fewer victims of crime.

The latest figures show overall crime in the borough was up by 12 per cent in 2016/17, with robbery and knife crime up by 24 per cent and 22 per cent respectively.

The Council is calling on the Government to commit to three things to keep our streets safe:

- No further cuts to the Metropolitan Police
- Increase the Police Grant
- Increase the funding that the Met receives from the Capital Cities Grant. (Currently, London gets £100million less than it should.)

RESIDENTS and business owners are being asked to have their say on a draft licensing policy, which aims to support the borough's nightlife, while also taking into account concerns about the increase of licensed premises in Hackney and anti-social behaviour (ASB).

By law, councils must have an up-to-date licensing policy. Hackney introduced one in 2005 and it was renewed in 2015. After two years of discussions with businesses and residents, and further evidence gathering, the updated proposals for new applications are aimed at better meeting the needs of both licensees and the local community.

Cllr Emma Plouviez, Chair of the Licensing Committee, said: "Striking a balance between promoting Hackney's vibrant nightlife and complaints from residents about noise and ASB is a real challenge.

"We think that this draft policy is fair; it puts the onus on applicants to prove to us that they will act responsibly and take into account the rights of residents to a good night's sleep. We will consider applications on their own merit, and will support licensees to do a good job, but will always take action when they don't meet the high standards we expect."

Key elements of the new

The draft policy aims to balance the borough's nightlife with the needs of residents to a good night's sleep

"This draft policy puts the onus on applicants to prove they will act responsibly"

draft policy include keeping the existing Dalston Special Policy Area (SPA) and extending the Shoreditch SPA to reflect evidence that the growth of premises is having a negative impact on residential areas.

The SPA policy would be revised so that applicants have to demonstrate that their premises will not add to issues of anti-social behaviour, public nuisance, crime and noise.

Another proposal is a new policy for 'off sales' – for example alcohol from off licences – which can lead to anti-social behaviour and street drinking.

Cuts to police affecting lives

Cllr Caroline Selman, Cabinet Member for Community Safety and Enforcement, said: "Our police do a fantastic job in Hackney, but years of pioneering and progressive partnership between the police, Council and other organisations to bring crime down over the past 15 years is being put at risk by short-sighted cuts to the police, and now crime is going up.

"This trend is mirrored London-wide, where overall offences are up by 4.56 per cent, and nationally, where recorded crime is up by 13 per cent. The police simply do not have the resources they need, and ministers' platitudes about being more efficient do nothing to address the reality or the rapidly growing concerns among our residents and businesses.

"We've repeatedly warned the Government that they need to act now to stop this trend continuing.

"I'm hearing more and more concerns from residents and businesses and think it's important the Home Secretary also hears first-hand how Government cuts to the police are affecting their lives and making our streets less safe."

YOUNG men from across the borough attended an inspirational careers event at the Council's Forest Road youth hub.

Over 40 young people from Stoke Newington, New Regents and Swanlea secondary schools attended the event on 18 October.

Organisers invited 15 professional men, of all ages and backgrounds, to share their stories and offer informal career advice on their field of expertise in a bid to motivate young men.

Guest speakers included Academy award-winning writer and producer James Lucas; assistant general manager for Westfield Europe, Jason Knight; and recruitment company director, Richard Blackburn; plus Hackney apprentices, architects and community organisers.

Ryan Boothe, 14, from Stoke Newington School, said: "I feel really inspired, it's actually helped me think about how I present myself and can be more confident in myself to achieve and do what I want to do in life."

The audience listened to speeches and took part in informal discussions with the speakers.

Thaddaeus Brown, 20, from Clapton, who chaired the panel discussion and talked about his design apprenticeship with the Council, said: "I felt inspired hearing other people's stories, it was great to share mine too."

“It's actually helped me think about how I present myself and can be more confident in myself to achieve”

Jo Byrne, PE teacher at Stoke Newington School, added: "This event gave our young people the chance to see and hear how someone has become successful with reference to where they may have been less successful on the way, but eventually they have achieved something great, which is a really important."

Celebrating the community

HACKNEY CVS, which represents the borough's voluntary and community sector, celebrated its 20-year anniversary in style with an awards ceremony at The Ace Hotel, Shoreditch.

The organisation's annual community awards, on 26 October, were presented by Jake Ferguson, Hackney CVS Chief Executive, and its chair Charles Middleton. He said: "I am always amazed by the fantastic contribution that so many local community groups and charities make to the borough."

"At Hackney CVS we are all about making Hackney a fairer place."

The Adiaha Antigha community achievement awards went to: Janet Murungi, from Rise Community Action; Kevin Brazant, a freelance youth worker; and Nick Connaughton and Bec Martin-Williams from Arcola Theatre. The Gary Francis achievement awards were given to seven young people who have overcome adversity to make significant and positive changes in their lives. They were: Kieran Morgan, Pembe Tokluhan, Paul Akinbola, Nathaniel Campbell, Craige Middleburg, Javade Wilson and Shanice Tobiere.

Hackney Empire hosted a joyful event for ESOL students

Learners honoured

The Mayor and the Speaker of Hackney joined ESOL students to celebrate their achievements at an awards ceremony held at Hackney Empire

OVER 180 residents took part in a joyous event at Hackney Empire to celebrate completing an English for Speakers of Other Languages (ESOL) course.

They were joined on 18 October by the Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, and Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Soraya Adejare, who presented certificates to the new graduates.

The ESOL courses help people access further education and improve prospects for employment.

The Mayor said: "Learning to speak English means so much more than just understanding the language. It allows everyone to take part in the civic, economic and cultural life of this fantastic, diverse borough.

"We're incredibly proud to provide ESOL classes in Hackney and support people to access opportunities, whether that's through helping them to find work, helping them to feel a part of the community, or just making it easier to go about daily life."

Hackney Adult Learning Services organise more than 25 ESOL courses a year for the borough's adult learners. They are held at accessible venues across the borough and are a place where adults can come to improve their English, enabling them to become more independent.

Saba Khan, who came to the borough from Pakistan, achieved a learner of the year award. She was the last to join the Entry 3 class at Comberton Children's Centre in April and passed all her exams in June.

She said: "I've learned so much. Before joining the class I didn't have many friends and only spoke a few words of English. I can now have a full conversation and have met new people."

Stand up for the neighbourhood

WITH local elections in London coming up next year, residents interested in becoming a councillor are being urged to find out more about what it involves.

On 3 May, residents will vote for the Mayor of Hackney and 57 councillors, representing the borough's 21 wards.

Anyone aged over 18, who lives or works in the borough, can stand to be a ward councillor. The role involves representing their area on borough-wide issues, decision-making, helping to shape policies and scrutinising decisions of council officers. The deadline for nominations is 6 April. For more information, visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/elections

Winter warmer heats up town

TEMPERATURES are predicted to dip as winter sets in but residents will be able to get advice on keeping warm and staying healthy with the annual Winter Warmer showcase. The popular free event, aimed at Council tenants and leaseholders over 55, will be held on 30 November, from 11am to 3pm, at Hackney Town Hall in Mare Street.

On the day residents can find out about what's on offer for older people in the borough, learn about saving energy and keeping warm, pick up freebies and get a free head massage at the health and wellbeing stall.

Residents over 55 can contact the Council's Resident Participation Team for more info. E-mail: getinvolved@hackney.gov.uk; visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/housing-get-involved; or call: 020 8356 7845.

They carried out a test purchase and found Tony Smith was selling cheap and inferior branded goods and misdescribing the stock with popular brand names like Hugo Boss, Lady

The trader has now left the premises and the Council has written to him warning that he will be subject to enforcement action or an Enterprise Act Injunction if he repeats any of the dishonest trading practices he was using at 48 Kingsland High Street.

YOUNG people from across Hackney quizzed town hall chiefs on everything from mental health to education at a meeting held to mark Local Democracy Week.

Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, invited representatives from Hackney Youth Parliament and The Petchey Academy to his office on 12 October, to discuss their concerns and some of the issues that interest them.

Many of the young people were keen to see a change in the law to allow 16-year-olds to vote. Other topics up for debate were funding for schools, tackling gang crime, support for young people with disabilities and the Grenfell Tower fire.

Srdjan Milivojevic, who studies at The Petchey Academy, told the Mayor he thought schools should teach more life skills, such as how to budget and manage bills.

Skye Fitzgerald-McShane, a member of Hackney Youth Parliament, asked what is being done to aid the mental health of young people in the borough, which sparked a discussion about support in schools and how exam stress and anxiety can affect young people.

The Mayor said: "I enjoyed meeting such an engaged group of young people and it was really valuable to find out what's important to them and how they see life in the borough. Their thoughts and questions – along with the work of the

Hackney is one of the most diverse places in the UK. In this regular feature, we profile the borough's great & good or just plain interesting

hackneypeople

By Harriet Worsley

WHEN you've survived six months together in a camper van called Betsy, including nights when the temperature fell to minus 20, you kind of know you're going to be able to get along in most conditions," says Ewald Van Der Straeten, explaining the journey that brought him and his business partner, George Bradley, together.

The pair now run an award-winning architecture practice in London Fields.

Back in 2003, however, they were a pair of young architecture graduates, with an elderly, acid green Volkswagen Westfalia and a crazy idea about travelling to see some of Europe's best buildings.

Ewald says: "I was studying in Brussels, but spent a year at Liverpool University, which is where I met George. We hit it off, and decided to drive through Spain, France, Italy, Slovenia, Croatia..."

The list goes on. But when the pair returned to the UK they put their adventures aside and each began to work for companies Ewald describes as 'major, corporate architects'.

They built their CVs but, he explains: "We got tired of that environment. We didn't want just to make lots of money for people. We craved a more personal relationship with clients."

So in 2010, they took the brave decision to quit their jobs. Ewald moved to the UK in order to launch their business, Bradley Van Der Straeten [BVDS].

There was, however, one problem. He laughs: "Nobody wanted to hire a company that had never had a project built."

So they decided to build one, from scratch.

"We built George's home in Stoke Newington, and then worked from its living room," explains Ewald.

Today, the building – called The Studio – is award-winning, while BVDS has grown to a team of eight and expanded into rather roomier premises in London Fields.

"The majority of our work is residential and we do a lot of work to houses in Hackney," says Ewald. He adds: "We love working here because our clients tend to be families, who aren't renovating their home to make a quick profit, but to create the best possible space for real family life."

Perhaps the best example of their mission is a TV show that aired on ITV this autumn. The programme, part of a series called 'Love Your Home and Garden', followed Ewald, George and celebrity gardener Alan Titchmarsh as they radically redesigned the home of an 11-year-old boy with cerebral palsy.

After being starved of oxygen at birth, Aryan now needs 24-hour care from his mother, who has given up her job while her husband works long hours to support the family.

Ewald and George set about opening out the ground floor of their home, redesigning furniture and adding huge sliding doors to make room for wheelchairs and medical equipment, and give Aryan easy access to the garden he loves.

"His parents couldn't take him into the garden because the whole space was too difficult to navigate. It was one of the most amazing moments in my life, seeing that boy's face shatter with emotion when he saw the house," says Ewald.

He adds: "It's moments like that, which make our job so worthwhile. As our business grows, we want to work with more charitable organisations."

To that end, the pair have recently finished work on the world's largest purpose-designed music therapy centre.

Located in Highgate, North London, Nordoff Robbins uses music to help adults and children with a range of disabilities from autism to dementia.

Its work has attracted global praise since 1958 but, says Ewald 'the 19th century building was terrible, very institutional'.

BVDS created new open-plan spaces, bespoke music therapy rooms and a warm, modern colour palate.

Ewald says: "The feedback we got from the centre's users made me cry."

"It was amazing to give them something that was genuinely world-leading."

"It was what we'd always set out to do when we started our company: make real, meaningful contributions to people's lives."

Building better foundations

IMPROVEMENTS to the Cycle Superhighway 1 (CS1) in Hackney have been announced following a review of the scheme.

Measures to reduce traffic around De Beauvoir and Wordsworth roads have already been installed, closing them off to rat-running motorists.

But after feedback from residents, further action is planned to reduce traffic and improve the CS1 route through the borough.

The closures in the Wordsworth Road area will be retained. (These proved controversial due to increased traffic in Brighton and Walford roads. But the Council felt the measures succeeded in reducing traffic and improving air quality and road safety near schools.)

The Council is preparing to consult on further schemes to reduce through traffic in neighbouring residential streets, and will upgrade the current closures with measures such as physical kerb build outs.

A design workshop will be held with residents to develop ideas to reduce conflicts between pedestrians and cyclists around Butterfield Green.

In the De Beauvoir area, the junction at De Beauvoir and Englefield roads will be made permanent and safer by building a wider island, narrower junction mouth, and raised entry to help enforce the one-

Supporting the Superhighway

Further improvements to Cycle Superhighway 1 are being considered by the Council to reduce traffic way operation.

A parallel pedestrian/cycle crossing will be installed at Englefield/Culford roads and, as requested by residents, the Council will investigate relocating the closure in Culford Road.

In the Pitfield Street area, the Council is looking at more road closures to reduce traffic. Other actions in the area include reviewing parking and loading arrangements around Wilson Street, Worship Street and Paul Street and raising the zebra crossing by New North Road to slow traffic.

In the Stamford Hill area, the Council is preparing to consult on a scheme to improve conditions for cyclists in West Bank, investigating options to improve safety around Dunsmure Parade and planning a protected crossing in Manor Road.

Discussions are ongoing with Islington Council, but the aspiration remains for a protected cycle lane in Balls Pond Road between its junctions with Culford and Kingsbury roads.

News in brief

Sort it out and boost recycling

RESIDENTS are recycling more than ever. September saw the borough achieve its highest ever rate, with 29 per cent of the waste collected being recycled. One way to ensure these levels continue to climb, is for residents to make sure that non-recyclable items don't find their way into recycling bins. All recycling loads are inspected before items are separated at the Material Recycling Facility in Bow. If they contain too much non-recyclable material loads can be rejected.

Materials like nappies, tissues and plastic film/wrap cannot be recycled and must go in rubbish bins. Food must go in separate food waste bins. Recycling must not be placed in black refuse bags. Anything in black bags is classed as rubbish and won't be recycled. To stop non-recyclable material from being placed in the communal recycling bins, the lids of the recycling bins are locked. Residents can report any that have been broken.

For more information on what can and can't be recycled, and to order more recycling bags and bins, visit: hackney.gov.uk/recycling; or call: 020 8356 6688.

All the items (pictured insets) can be recycled in Hackney

The owl nesting boxes will be installed in parks and an estate

Building homes for tawny owls is such a hoot...

HACKNEY Council and The Conservation Volunteers have teamed up to construct five nesting boxes for tawny owls to be installed across the borough.

The boxes were built by Hackney Green Gym volunteers from scratch and provided a great opportunity to learn new woodworking skills and put their carpentry know-how to the test.

The boxes will be put up in three parks – Woodberry Wetlands, Wick Woodland and Hackney Marshes – and one housing estate.

The Council is always looking for ways to improve local areas for wildlife, and the Green Gym is a great way for volunteers to lend a hand. Weekly tasks can vary from planting native bulbs to creating wildflower meadows.

Volunteers meet for three hours every Friday from 10.45am next to the Nye Bevan Community Hall. For those wanting to enjoy the outdoors with like-minded people, gain new practical skills, or learn more about local wildlife, the Green Gym is a great way to get involved.

Funny Women Awards

10 Nov, Hoxton Hall, 130 Hoxton Street N1 6SH

AFTER 15 years, 2,500 contestants, and world-famous winners. The Funny Women Awards is back once again and ready to sky-rocket the latest generation of stand up comics. Every year, the competition travels the country, holding regional heats to discover Britain's wittiest women. Previous winners and finalists include Bridget Christie, Zoe Lyons, Sara Pascoe and Katherine Ryan.

There are four categories, aiming to find the best stage performer; comedy writer; short film maker; and show. Winners get invaluable support from established professionals to develop their practice.

► For more info, visit: www.hoxtonhall.co.uk

Katherine Ryan, who scooped the 2008's stage category, said: "I had just started stand-up comedy when I won the award and loads has changed since then. Funny Women provided me with lots of friends, advice, and exposure."

The search for London's funniest lass heads to Hoxton Hall on 10 November. Go prepared for your eyes to weep, and your tummy to ache, with laughter.

The Funny Women Awards take place at Hoxton Hall on 10 November, and then again on 22 and 23 February. All shows start at 7.30pm. Tickets cost £12, with £10 concessions available.

ART & EXHIBITIONS

OJOS DE PERRO AZUL

Until 12 Nov, various opening times

Montse Gallego's childhood fascination with a short story by Gabriel García Márquez has developed throughout her career as an artist. Now, at the point of leaving her role as director of Hundred Years Gallery for a sabbatical period, she wanted to bring back this homage to Márquez whose 'magic spirit' inspired the name of the gallery and still hovers around the gallery space. Free. All ages. Hundred Years Gallery, 13 Pearson Street, Hoxton, E2 8JD. Info: 020 3602 7973; info@hundredyearsgallery.com; www.hundredyearsgallery.co.uk/exhibition-m-gallego-ojos-de-perro-azul/

LONDONSCAPES – BUILDINGS AND CITYSCAPES

Until 19 Nov, daily, 10am-6pm

Prints and drawings by Jane Smith. The Dalston-based illustrator captures the changes to Hackney's urban landscape, reflecting the old and the new, with house prices skyrocketing, Ridley Road Market now has coffee shops and galleries nestled in between the traditional fruit and vegetable stalls. There is also a linocut workshop with the artist on 12 Nov, from 2pm-5pm, priced at £30. Booking essential via either web link. Free. All ages. WILL CAMPAIGNS AGAINST CULTURAL APPROPRIATION DESTROY THE ARTS?

10 Nov, 6.30pm-9pm

Increasingly artists and writers find their creative impulses curtailed by fears that they will be offending one minority group or another by 'stealing' their culture. But do attacks on cultural appropriation have a point? Should respect for the cultural history of particular groups take precedence over artistic inspiration? And should artists and writers be held to account for the way they use sources outside their own culture to inspire and create their own work? At this Battle of Ideas satellite event, British writer and philosopher Kenan Malik will examine the impulses behind the attacks on cultural appropriation and, with three respondents working in the arts, explore impacts on art and creativity. £7, £5 conc. Win tickets to see My Name is Prince!

HE was one of the best-selling recording artists in music history. Now, a new exhibition is bringing together his stage outfits, awards, instruments and handwritten lyrics to celebrate his life. 'My Name Is Prince' promises to give fans a chance to get up close and personal with Prince Rogers Nelson. And, indeed, the exhibition – getting its world premiere at the O2 – includes hundreds of 'never-before-seen' artefacts from Prince's private estate Paisley Park.

There's a diamond studded cane, his 'third eye' sunglasses, the famous cloud-covered suit from the 'Raspberry Beret' video... Elsewhere you can see the Gibson L65 guitar he used during his television debut in 1980, and the orange one he used for his 2007 Super Bowl performance.

It's dazzling in its scope, colour and glitz. Which of course, is only appropriate in an exhibition that attempts to chart the life of a true original. 'My Name Is Prince' is on at the O2 until 7 January. Ticket prices start at £12. For more details and to book, visit: www.theo2.co.uk

Hackney Today is giving away a pair of tickets to 'My Name Is Prince' at the O2. But hurry, the closing date is 17 November. Send your entry to: My Name is Prince competition, Hackney Today, Communications, Hackney Town Hall, E8 1EA; or e-mail: htnews@hackney.gov.uk by 12noon on 17 November. Submissions must include an address, e-mail and contact number. Winners will be pulled out of a hat.

Innovative route into medicine

Students at the Clive Bourne Sixth Form in Mossbourne Community Academy are being supported to follow careers in medicine

BUDDING doctors and dentists can get a helping hand thanks to an innovative medical bursary programme at a Hackney sixth form.

Students at The Clive Bourne Sixth Form – in Mossbourne Community Academy – can benefit from specialist support and training to help them realise their dreams.

The scheme is the first of its kind in the state sector and exceeds the support offered by many private schools.

Students will get to undertake simulated operations, discuss the ethics of medical intervention and gain work-based skills to help them pass the rigorous assessment process for medical school.

The scheme will provide them with experiences to build up their ability to tackle the intensive application tests and interviews that face would-be-medical students.

Davinder Bhachu, head of the programme, said: “State school students are under-represented in medical colleges and it seems that while they perform better than private school pupils once they get in, it is difficult to get through the door.

“State students are under-represented in medical colleges. It is difficult to get through the door”

“This programme aims to tackle that access gap.”

Peter Hughes, Chief Executive of the Mossbourne Federation, added: “We will be placing a number of our own students into this scheme, but want to open it up to all aspiring medics who will benefit from this innovative programme.”

Students will need

GCSEs at Level 7 or above, including sciences, to apply for the bursary programme.

News in brief

A recognised success story

MORNINGSIDE School has been recognised for its hard work and outstanding achievements under the new ‘Schools for Success’ programme set up by the Mayor of London. It celebrates those achieving academic success for all pupils, in particular disadvantaged or vulnerable students. The school in Chatham Place, which has recently rated as ‘outstanding’ by Ofsted, is one of nine Hackney primaries invited to join the programme.

Chance to turn over a new leaf

AS research reveals that five million adults across the UK struggle to read, a national literacy charity is launching a new project in Hackney.

Read Easy UK matches learners with trained volunteers for one-on-one tuition. They meet twice a week, in a local venue, using a reading scheme specially designed for adults. Chief Executive and founder, Ginny Williams-Ellis, said: “The new group will bring the gift of reading to many people.”

The charity is holding a meeting at 5.45pm on 22 November at Pembury Community Centre. For details, e-mail: serena@readeasy.org.uk; or call: 07763 158 099.

DIVERSITY STARTS AT GRASSROOTS. INSPIRE THE YOUNG.

Pitch Futures

Project sows creative seeds

IT’S like Mad Men meets Bugsy Malone! Primary pupils from Rushmore school have signed up for a collaboration with the advertising industry.

Through a new project called Pitch Futures, the Clapton children will take part in an exhibition hosted by Pitch magazine at D&AD, the education charity which promotes excellence in design and advertising, on 6 and 7 December. As well as showcasing the work of photographers, animators and directors, the show will include a live shoot with the children and a creative class with industry experts.

Sherry Collins, Editor of Pitch magazine, said: “The exhibition is aimed at primary school children aged between eight and 10 and by targeting schools with a diverse mix of children, we aim to capture the imagination of the advertising creatives of the future, by sowing the creative seed.”

The initiative aims to inspire children to consider creative industry careers and increase diversity in the advertising world.

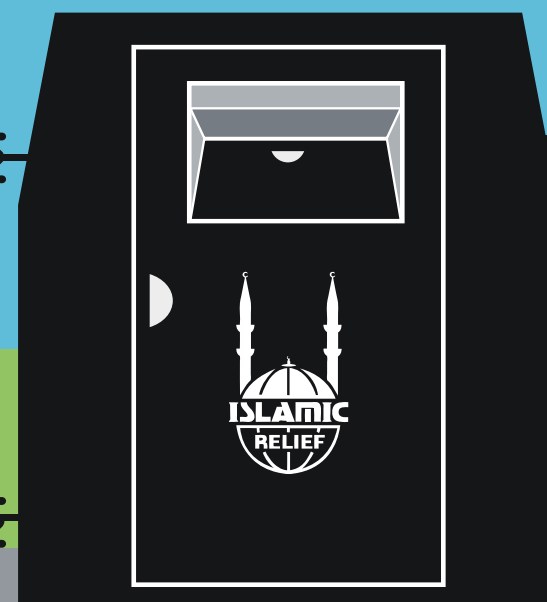

You might not love your old clothes any more, but someone else might.

So instead of throwing them in the bin, use our textile banks.

We even want things that can't be reused like worn out socks, tatty clothes and old bed sheets. 70% of items are sold to raise money for good causes. Everything else is shredded and turned into new items like cloths and blankets.

There are over 100 banks across Hackney.

AN innovative Hackney charity has launched a free programme alongside a national campaign to reduce the stigma and taboo associated with menopause.

All women experience the menopause, but the advice and information given to them by healthcare professionals is often limited to conversations about using Hormone Replacement Therapy (HRT) treatment.

However, Stoke Newington-based charity Hands Inc has created 'Reclaim the Menopause' which offers an innovative, holistic and 'whole-woman' approach to supporting those going through the menopause. This involves raising awareness of the options available for managing symptoms.

The charity's 12-week programme uses practical techniques and holistic therapies such as meditation to offer coping mechanisms to manage hot flushes, night sweats and sleep disturbance.

Operations Director for Reclaim The Menopause, Joy Beishon, said: "Our course provides support and knowledge to promote menopause awareness, challenge stigma and increase self-management among menopausal women. Results from our evaluation show that attendees experienced improvements in mood, felt their quality of life improved and reported a reduction in menopausal symptoms."

A UK-wide campaign, to be launched in 2018, hopes to start a national conversation to address the stigma and taboo surrounding menopause.

Reclaim The Menopause's founder and Director, Eileen Bellot, said: "Our campaign aims to change the perception of the menopause from a negative to a positive life stage.

40s and 50s have more time, confidence and disposable income than they did in their 20s.

"It's a time for women to truly focus on themselves and their needs.

"We want women to manage and share their experiences of the menopause by supporting each other using the power of self-awareness, conversation and exploration of their stories."

News in brief

Help to cut back on the booze

THE Council is supporting Alcohol Awareness Week in a bid to get residents thinking about how alcohol can affect them, their families, communities and society.

From 13 to 19

November, there will be information stalls in the Hackney Service Centre in Hillman Street providing support and advice for residents. There will also be a stall at Tesco in Morning Lane, on 15 November.

These will provide an opportunity to find out more about the impact alcohol can have on health and how cutting down can help improve sleep, boost energy and also save money. There will also be information about the support services available in Hackney.

Alcohol Awareness Week is a great time to sign up to 'Dry January' and plan a break from booze in the New Year. To register, visit: www.alcoholconcern.org.uk/dry-january

For details of local alcohol support services, including support for family members through Hackney Recovery Service and the Young Hackney Substance Misuse Service, visit: hackney.gov.uk/substance-misuse For more information on alcohol and health, visit: www.nhs.uk/oneyou/drinking

Walking football sessions have been launched in Hackney

Walking football for the goal-den years

THEY think it's all over, but a project is bringing football back for those with impaired mobility.

The London Football Association (LFA) has launched walking football sessions across the capital. They are designed to improve fitness and provide fun for those of all ages and abilities.

Lisa Pearce, CEO of LFA, said: "Walking football is open to men and women of all ages. It's so easy to join in, all you need is a pair of trainers."

Sessions are free and take place at a slower pace to reduce the risk of pain, discomfort or injury.

Recent research indicates that the sport improves not only physical but social wellbeing too.

Anwar Uddin, Diversity and Campaigns Manager at The Football Supporters Federation, said: "There are so many benefits for older people who probably don't get as much exercise as they used to.

"Playing the game can improve joint mobility, give you more energy, stronger muscles, increased flexibility, aid weight loss, help with breathing and increase stamina.

"Most importantly, it will help to form new friendships and restore that feeling of team spirit."

Sessions take place in Hackney at King's Hall Leisure Centre, Lower Clapton Road, E5, every Monday, 6pm to 7pm; and Thursday, 2.15pm to 3.15pm. For more details, visit: www.walkingfootball.com/calendar/event/794-kingshall-leisure-centre-hackney/

A healthy eating programme from Shoreditch Trust

www.shoreditchtrust.org.uk

SHOREDITCH Trust's Food For Life Programme works with members of the community to encourage affordable healthy eating, cooking skills and food knowledge.

These quick, colourful and simple mini frittatas make a fantastic after school snack, a filling and nutritious breakfast, or an easy lunchbox addition. Make a tray of these mini frittatas and store them in a closed container in the fridge for a few days. (They could even be frozen for later in the week.)

The eggs provide protein needed for growth and repair. Adding in favourite vegetables ups the vitamin, mineral and fibre content too. Use any fresh or frozen vegetables that are to hand, just chop everything in to 2cm cubes. This is also a great way to use up those ends of vegetables that may be past their best.

Children love helping to prepare the vegetables and beat the eggs, so if you have time, get youngsters to help you. We find that when children help make the food, they are also more likely to eat the food.

Mini frittata

Makes 12 mini frittatas

Preparation time
20 mins

Cooking time
12 mins

Ingredients

- 4 eggs
- 75g cheese, finely grated (optional)
- 1.5 tablespoons chopped fresh herbs (chives, basil, parsley or coriander)
- 2 handfuls of chopped or grated seasonal vegetables (mushrooms, courgette, spinach, pepper etc)
- A few grinds of black pepper.

Method

- Preheat oven to 190 degrees C
- In a bowl, beat the eggs
- Chop or grate the vegetables finely and add to the eggs. Also add the herbs, pepper and cheese
- Line a muffin tray with 12 cases. Using a teaspoon, fill the muffin cups to just below the edge with the beaten eggs and vegetable mix
- Make sure the ingredients are evenly spread out
- Bake until golden (about 12 minutes)
- For lunches serve with wholemeal pita bread, carrot and cucumber sticks, and fresh fruit.

Have your say on future development plans for the borough

RESIDENTS can help shape the future of the borough by having their say on Hackney's Local Plan: a blueprint for development in the borough until 2033.

The draft plan covers a wide range of topics including: housing, jobs, community facilities, town centres, transport, open spaces, heritage, climate change and the environment.

The deadline for comments is 4 December.

For more information, to read the full document, or to have your say online, visit: hackney.gov.uk/LP33.

If people have any further questions they can e-mail: planmaking@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 8084.

Proposals for special educational needs and disabilities funding

THE Council is proposing to change the way it funds Special Educational Needs and Disabilities (SEND) students in the borough.

The proposals will streamline the current model of an Education, Health and Care Plan and introduce new ways of applying for extra support.

The aim is to speed up the time it takes for schools to receive funding and ensure money reaches those who need it most.

To find out more about the proposals and respond to the consultation, visit: consultation.hackney.gov.uk and search for 'SEND funding arrangements'.

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by residents and serve for four years. The last borough-wide elections took place in May 2014.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee Council services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

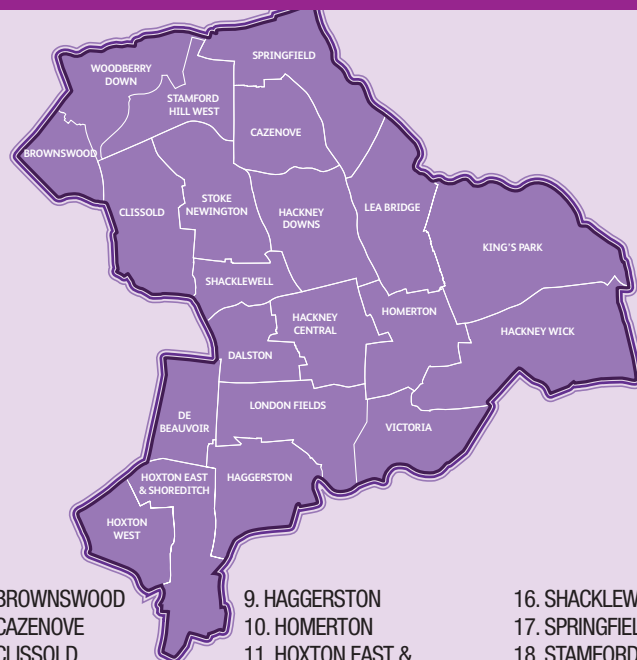

MAYOR PHILIP GLANVILLE

Hackney's executive Mayor Philip Glanville was directly elected by the borough in 2016. He is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. The Mayor holds monthly casework surgeries in the Town Hall.

To book an appointment, e-mail: mayor@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 3269. Residents are first encouraged to contact their ward councillor. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney, who is chosen annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Soraya Adejare.
